For Congress—7th District, IRVING P. WANGER.

There is no sentiment in a gambler. The New York election betters are offering odds 4 to 1 on the election of McKinley.

With a degree of candor that is refreshing the Doylestown Democrat, Calamity organ, declares that one of the busiest places in that vicinity is at the Almshouse.

The Democrats cannot run away from the 16 to 1 plank. It is fastened to the party like a tin can to a dog's tail, and will come clanking after it no matter how fast the party runs.

Desertions from the Democratic ranks have begun. North, east, south and west comes notices of powerful Democratic agencies that will refuse to support the Democratic candidate for President.

The muddy plaster coat of Bryan, which was unveiled in the Kansas City Convention, would have looked much better if the beautiful stars and stripes covering had remained to hide the miserable workmanship.

The National delegates from the Seventh district to the Kansas City Convention in the caucus voted against the silver plank. Bucks and Montgomery Democrats, however, as well as those from all of the eastern states, are compelled to swallow the Populist dose.

The "Skipper" "Transcript" reports as a fact that a baby in that neighborhood, 24 years old, out out a perfect shirtnose pattern—muck, yoke and all—as good as a grown person could do. We would not believe it on any less authority than the "Transcript."

Since the 4th of March, 1897, Congress has authorized the construction of forty nine ships, with a total displacement of 246,464 tons. This includes eight battleships of the first class; six armored cruisers of the first class; four monitors and nine protected cruisers. There have been completed and placed in commission, in the same time, a total of thirty-two vessels, with an aggregate displacement of 62,681 tons.

Under the Crawford county system, which was tried for the first time, the Quay faction swept Luzerne county on Saturday. Senator W. J. Scott, who deserted Quay during the last days of the session and followed Magee, was a candidate for renomination. During his canvass he announced that he would not vote for Quay. He was defeated by William Drury by a large majority. Drury declared he would go into a caucus and abide by its decision.

In view of Mr. Bryan's remark that the Democratic party would be willing to take the vote of all the people who have not had their share of prosperity and leave the Republicans the votes of the people who have been prosperous people are wondering if he will vote for McKinley for president this year. In 1896 the assessed valuation of Mr. Bryan's property was only $270; this year it was $4,660, showing that general prosperity has visited Colonel Bryan. As he is one of the prosperous ones, he should certainly vote for Mr. McKinley.

Editor Dambly, who once was a member of the Pennsylvania legislature by the grace of the Republican voters of Montgomery, but who is now in bad standing with his party, urged the readers of the "Skipper" "Transcript," "irrespective of party affiliations or factional associations to support fusion members of the House of Representatives and Senate." The stalwart Republicans of Montgomery owe it to themselves not to be influenced by the baying of destroyers. Nominate a straight ticket and if it comes down to defeat by reason of the actions of the cutters—let 'em go.

It is of the utmost importance that the Republicans lose no Congressional districts this fall. The loss of thirteen districts in the United States means that the Democrats will control the lower house of Congress. In the present Congress, which will close on November 4 next, the Republicans have a membership of 187, while the Democrats have 168 and the Populists 7. By these figures it will be seen that, counting the vote of the Democrats and Populists together, which makes 175, the Republicans have a majority of only 12 in the entire membership is present, and that is very slim. Much of the Republican legislation during the recent session of the Fifty-sixth Congress was accomplished by a bare majority. Thus it will be seen how important the election of Congressmen is this year.

SIDLEY'S LOGICAL PLATFORM.

J. C. Sidley is the apostle of common sense, and gives some undeniable reasons for deserting the cause of free silver and joining the Republican ranks. Mr. Sidley, who has represented his Pennsylvania district in Congress for several terms, in 1896 was considered one of the wheel horses of the free silver party. He was the choice of many Democrats for the vice presidential nomination, and his speech on free silver was a text during the campaign.

After four years of Republican prosperity, during which the free silver fallacies have been effectually disproved, Mr. Sidley, who is a Republican candidate for Congress, thus sums up his position concisely and logically. "I am in favor of $10 a thousand for heavy lumber in my district as against $6 a thousand four years ago; of 9 cent cotton as against 4 cent cotton; of $1.66 a barrel for oil as against 60 cents a barrel; of 40 cent corn as against 80 cent corn; of a bigger rate per ton for the man who digs the coal than was paid the owner four years ago; of the continuance of the opportunity for every man to secure remunerative employment and the banishment forever of soup houses from this glorious country.

"There are 100 more planks in my platform similar to the above, but my chief plank is that I am for a continuance of the splendid prosperity that we are enjoying under the administration of President McKinley."

A platform a mile long could not state the case better or more convincingly than this brief statement of Mr. Sidley.

A Doylestown space writer for the Philadelphia "Ledger" in the effort to furnish astonishing "news," declares that although Mr. Wanger was unanimously nominated at Bristol, there is far from being a unanimity of opinion as to the result of the poll in November. The correspondent says: "There is a widespread impression that Bucks county will never regain its rights in the Congressional District until Wanger is defeated, and there are a number of Republicans who think this is a good year to do it. If the Democrats nominate a popular candidate, if the Democrats nominate Jeremiah Lazoreski, of Norristown, they will stand a good chance of winning out at the polls, as he is not only popular in his own county but also in Bucks, where he has a large number of relatives."

The correspondent bears all the ear marks of the "Intelligencer's" office, and the "widespread impression" is a sole concoction. Jerry Lazareski, if nominated by the Democrats, would have no more show of being elected over a man like Wanger than the Doylestown correspondent has of being rewarded for telling the truth. The Republicans of Bucks were never more united for Mr. Wanger than they are this year.

POLITICAL DRIFT.

Ex-Prothonotary William M. Stackhouse, of Bristol township, has announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic Assembly nomination.

A reading of the political stars reveals the following Messrs. Edwards and Wilkinson will be nominated on the Republican Assembly ticket, while a strong candidate—probably John G. Weinberger, of Milford, will complete the trio, taking the place of William P. Winner, of Quakertown.

Democratic candidates for county offices are ripening. For District Attorney there are alleged to be three seekers for the nomination—Henry A. James and Asahel K. Anders, of Doylestown, and Thomas G. Leslie, of Bristol. For Prothonotary there are in the field J. Kewson Cornell, of Southampton; Jesse H. Smith, of Yardley; Spencer B. Hibbs, of Humesville, and "Squire John G. Vandergrift, of Bensalem.

John L. DuBois, Jr., who offers his name for the Republican District Attorneyship nomination, makes a serious mistake for the welfare of his candidacy when he presumes to say that he "realizes that the machine has predetermined this nomination." By the "machine" we take it that Mr. DuBois means the foremost active Republicans in the county: men of sound judgment, learning and ability, lawyers and men who aim to assist in the effort to place the best Republicans in office. If Mr. DuBois places himself in a position which precludes the endorsement of the Republican leaders, the prospects are dim that he shall receive very much consideration in the convention.

The New York "Sun's" correspondent at Kansas City tells of a conversation with an old time Democrat at the convention. It was after two men had struggled to the platform and deposited a dirty, yellow bust of Bryan on a dry goods box. The Declaration of Independence had been read and the band started up the "Star Spangled Banner." The old Democrat from Washington said:

"Star Spangled Banner be hanged, they had better make it 'Chopin's Funeral March' or the 'Dead March in Saul.' They had better press down a crown of hog-bristles whippers on the brow of that bearded brute and send him to the gallows. It's the funeral of the Democratic party. All there is to look forward to is the interment, and that will take place next fall. And I don't think there will be any friends of the family left to pass around and view the remains."

"I am in favor of the Declaration of Independence. Who in the Lord's name isn't? I am in favor of the Ten Commandments, and I believe in the law of gravitation. But what on earth is the sense of making a political platform out of them? I wonder if there is any other assinine thing left that the Democratic party can do in convention assemblage. Of course, at first I thought I don't know, but I don't know—I am afraid the returns from all the lunatic asylums are not all in yet."

The Doylestown Democrat is a demonstration of the power of Bryanism. Discovering that it made a serious mistake four years ago in bolting the Chicago platform, and getting out of harmony with the Democratic organization, that paper has swallowed the bitter dose of Populism and passes the cup of "harmony" to all Democratic lips. The spectacle of the Democrat calling strenuously on others to partake of that which it repudiated in '96 is a demonstration of the power of the club, and the frailties of the human mind. Our contemporary was too weak to stick to its honest convictions.

The County Commissioners' statement of the wealth of the county displays an interesting point. The report shows that there are 15,887 horses in the county valued at $88,571. There are also 20,139 cows valued at $604,445. The number of horses and cows are nearly equal while the value of the latter is nearly seven times greater.

The New York "Sun" notices ex-Governor Patterson's effort to get into line as follows: "Some newspaper statisticians report that 812 persons were killed by lightning in the last twelve months. Yet the Hon. Robert E. Patterson, who bared his head to the stroke, couldn't get even a flesh."

ROUGH RIDERS IN THE CAMPAIGN

How Pennsylvania Young Republicans Propose to Turn Out.

WILL BALLY FOR THE TICKET.

A Novel Uniform For a Political Campaign is That of the Followers of the Hero of San Juan Hill, Who is on the National Ticket.

(Special Correspondence.) Harrisburg, July 10.—Pennsylvania will be well to the front in enthusiasm and party fervor in the coming presidential campaign.

A proposition has been made to the party leaders to assist in the organization of what shall be known as "Rough Rider" campaign clubs. These organizations, it is suggested, shall be composed of young Republicans, who will be recruited for the campaign and who will attend mass meetings and other party rallies in the interests of McKinley and Roosevelt and the entire Republican ticket.

ROUGH RIDERS' RIGS. It is proposed that the men who participate in the demonstrations in which these clubs shall figure shall be uniformed in attire of khaki with the Rough Rider slouch hats and leggings, and each to wear an artificial eye glass, as a sort of suggestion of Roosevelt's personality.

Gen. Reeder, chairman of the Republican state committee, is understood to look with favor upon this suggested plan to enlist the sympathies and the energies of young Republicans of the state, and it is said, he will make an effort to get Col. Roosevelt to make at least one speech during the present campaign in Pennsylvania.

The local Rough Rider clubs will be gotten together for this occasion and a great ovation is promised the vice presidential candidate and the hero of San Juan Hill.

A close friend of Governor Roosevelt remarked a few days ago that had it not been for the positive stand taken by Col. Quay and his colleagues in the Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican national convention Col. Roosevelt would not have been nominated at the Philadelphia convention.

Col. Quay will not take any undue credit for the attitude of the delegation from this state on the issue of the vice presidency. He made it quite clear that he advocated the nomination of Col. Roosevelt for vice president, not on personal grounds—for it is probable that he is a close personal friend of Roosevelt for years. They have spent much time together hunting—a big game in the wild west and as each is fond of that sort of sport a natural feeling of friendship developed between them.

Prosperity will be the keynote of the coming presidential campaign, and Pennsylvania will not be ashamed to present the record of her advancement and success since the election of McKinley to the presidency. She is eager to do all in her power to continue the ascendancy of the Republican party in administering the affairs of the nation.

She is proud of the work that has been done under President McKinley's guidance and direction, and she is ready to meet the issue with any Bryanite champions at any time during the coming canvass.

A gratifying condition of affairs among the workingmen of Pennsylvania under the Republican administration of national affairs is presented in a report of James Campbell, chief of the Pennsylvania state factory inspection department. He says there has never been greater evidence of prosperity among the wage earners.

PROSPERITY'S REIGN. Few men in Pennsylvania have better opportunity for knowing the condition of labor than has Chief Campbell, because of the close touch which he must maintain with various industries, through his deputies, who cover every part of the state. "My reports up to the first of last March," he said a few days ago, "showed that there were 225,000 more employees than there were about the same date in 1899. So that in all there are nearly a half million more wage earners engaged than there were four years ago in the branches covered by the deputy inspectors."

"With this as a basis—that is, in the factories and other works subject to inspection by our deputies—there must be between 700,000 or 800,000 more hands employed than there were four years ago, taking into consideration the increase on the railroads, in the mines and in other industries. This is true wherever you look. Things were never in better condition, in fact, than they are now. In many instances, moreover, it is found that there are manufacturing establishments in Pennsylvania that would be running on double time if the owners could get the required number of people. This is particularly the case with the steel labor. It cannot be obtained to the desired limit in various lines. Of course wages have gone up. They must do so as long as this scarcity of workmen exists."

Fall and Explicit Directions. Two bicyclists passing through a small town on the Long Island shore decided to take the train from there home. Being unfamiliar with the route, they stopped to inquire of a colored woman who was to the railway station.

"We are strangers," they said. "Would you kindly direct us to the station?" "Certainly," she replied. "I'll go along right on till you comes to a corner where a de ole postoffice used ter be, den tu'n to yo' left an' yo'll go right to de station."

As they rode off she beamed with pride, with amusement, and, although they found the station, they have yet to discover the "corner" where de ole postoffice used ter be.—New York Sun.

Getting Down to Business. The lawyer was telling of the great forensic effort he intended to make when the case came to trial.

"See," interrupted the litigant, "that business is business with you lawyers as well as with other merchants, and perhaps you are right in wanting the matter settled at the start. How much will you charge?"—New York Mail and Express.

Disinterested Affection. "I'm afraid, Edward, you're carrying me only because I've inherited from my uncle 100,000 crowns." "Why, Benjamin, how can you think that of me? Your uncle is nothing to me, I would not care for him, nor for whom you inherited the money!"—Der Flöck.

The New York "Tribune" shows that it is familiar with the tricks of Democracy, when it says:

"If Minister Conger gets out alive to doubt the Democrats will discover that the anxiety about him was all the result of a cleverly planned conspiracy of the wicked McKinley to get an excuse to land troops in China and absorb it into his empire."

Nebraska hugs gold in Omaha, May 31st, at $4.60 per head more than on the same date four years ago, yet the World Herald, Mr. Bryan's personal organ, which is published in Omaha, asserted very vigorously during the 1896 campaign that the prices of no farm products could advance without the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

Try as it will Democracy cannot get away from Bryanism and free silver. The head of the ticket stands for a debased currency, unsafe legislation and cheap demagoguery, and platform declarations cannot cover the sins or weaknesses of the candidate. The party papers are making an effort to hide the silver plank, by reiterating the language of the platform that "imperialism is the paramount issue."

The Kansas City platform is a series of denunciatory resolutions. "We condemn," "we denounce," "we oppose" forms, the greater part of McKinley's declaration of principles. Any fool can tear down, criticize and condemn. The Republican party is the architect of the nation. Under its skillful direction the United States has grown to be the mightiest of nations. Mr. Bryan in his speech at Lincoln on Tuesday, said he gloried in the supremacy of this great country. We might add that the Democracy has no reason to congratulate itself over the fact.

THY REFLECTION.

As drops of rain are painted through and through with dancing sun and poppies blown in prayer the vision of your loveliness and you, my soul, enmeshed in an opal deep and fair—Flashing and fainting as a breath of air—Pants in the storm and dies in fallen dew. But, as the rainbow, faithful to her vow, Dances the forest of the hardest stone, So did thy glory, constant and the same, Paint every thought with golden smiles; alone In shadows gave a shape, its shape my whole Glimpse of the world, whose living traits repeat Thy image, venous marble and complete, Fixed in the sunny mirror of my soul.

Appearance. "Don't worry too much 'bout appearance," said Uncle Ebenezer. "De patent leather in yoh shoes looks fine, but it ain't gwinter keep yoh feet 'um hurtin'."—Washington Star.

The malignity that never forgets or forgives is found only in base and ignoble natures, whose aims are selfish and whose means are indirect, cowardly and treacherous.—Hillard.

Probably every man has heard it repeated many times that his wife regretted him for his reason if he were refused.—Aitchison Globe.
